

ANNEX 6

HEALTH COOPERATION/TCM COOPERATION

Both Parties will cooperate in the health sector, promote direct communication between health institutions, schools and companies on both sides and strengthen cooperation aimed at disease control and treatment, medical technologies and equipment, as well as jointly promote health development in both countries.

The Parties will promote Traditional Chinese Medicine (TCM) in Serbia and will encourage practical cooperation between TCM medical and academic institutes including the China Academy of Chinese Medical Sciences and medical universities in Serbia under the leadership of the relevant departments of the two sides.

The Parties are willing to strengthen communication and cooperation in the public health sector and encourage public health entities to implement cooperation in the field of monitoring and control of communicable diseases and chronic non-communicable diseases.

The Parties will cooperate in research and development of new vaccines for the most important diseases and infectious diseases and organize an exchange of practices in the field of vaccination and immunization.

The Parties are willing to strengthen cooperation in the field of emergency medicine, health surveillance, and emergency response in order to strengthen cooperation in areas such as cross-border health care, laboratory testing, and public emergency response under the International Health Regulations (2005).